

Friday Night Fort Service Attendance Up

Last Friday night the Post Chapel at Fort Benjamin Harrison had the largest group of Jewish worshippers since its opening, when a total of 85 persons, 55 soldiers and 30 civilians, attended the service conducted by Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt. In opening his sermon Rabbi Goldblatt remarked, "When we first started these services 14 months ago we sometimes had as few as 3 soldiers in attendance. Only 4 weeks ago the average attendance was a dozen. It is most gratifying to me to see this large increase in attendance and I feel sure that the presence of these young ladies in the Chapel has nothing to do with the large number of soldiers who are also here." After services an Oneg Shabbat was held in the Chapel.

PUBLIC RELATIONS COMMITTEE CHECKING ON MANY INCIDENTS

The Indianapolis Jewish community's newly organized Public Relations Committee this week began the first of a series of private meetings with merchant groups described as "fact-trading" sessions designed to give both groups the benefit of available information.

The Public Relations Committee simultaneously disclosed that it is gathering facts in several cases involving some degree of discrimination.

Every major Indianapolis Jewish organization is represented on the committee, which was set up recently by the Indianapolis Jewish Federation. Two meetings have been held by the committee as a whole and more than a dozen sessions by the executive committee. Philip Adler Jr. is chairman.

Spokesmen for the Committee have pledged their interest in a democratically-operated organization working both within and without the Jewish community.

Many phases of action were discussed at the monthly meeting of the entire Committee a week ago. The problem of discrimination at a private social club was aired and a decision made to conduct further and more intensive study to the situation.

tyranny will never permanently conquer the citidels of the human spirit."

Dear Mr. Rosenberg:
On my mother's behalf, I am taking this opportunity to thank you for the fine hospitality shown my brother, Pvt. Solomon Horwitz, upon his recent visit to Kirshbaum Center, at your local USO Center.

In my brother's last letter home he wrote us of the fine "Jewish" meal he had there. It is a grand feeling for us back home to know that the Jewish families of Indianapolis are doing such a fine job.

Many thanks!
Yours for victory,
M. HORWITZ.

I am exceedingly happy and grateful to hear from you with reference to my son, Alvin. Those few words, that he is in good health and spirits have acted as a tonic.

As long as there are people like you who do all in their power to lessen the burden of our soldier boys, America will not fail, but emerge victorious, and let us hope and pray that our victory will be soon and our dear sons will be marching home again in the near future.

I would appreciate hearing from you whenever Alvin visits your Center. Thanking you for your kindness, I am

TROPHY

Given By U. S. Zionists
To Lord Balfour
Purchased

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

EDINBURGH—A gold-and-silver statuette presented to Lord Balfour in 1923 by American Zionists as a token of appreciation for his efforts in securing Jewish rights to settlement in Palestine has been purchased from Lord Balfour's estate by a group of local Jewish leaders.

The statuette, which was sculpted by Louis Rosenthal of Baltimore, was presented to Lord Balfour by Dr. Weizmann at impressive ceremonies in London in November, 1923, with representatives of the Palestine Jewish community and of the American Zionists present. Accepting the figure at that time, Lord Balfour expressed the feeling that "he had hardly done enough to deserve this."

A memorial shaft surmounted by a two and one-half inch figure of Lord Balfour and forty tiny figures at its base compose the statuette which is eleven inches high. On the shaft are two tablets. On one, in English, is written: "To Arthur James Balfour from the Jews of the United States." On the other, in Hebrew, is written the biblical quotation. "They shall beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

PUBLIC RELATIONS

A spirited debate ensued over an incident in one of the Negro neighborhoods and a special sub-committee was set up to explore this situation and report back.

"It is our intention," said Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt, the Committee's executive secretary, "to hold monthly meetings of the entire committee. We do not intend to hide anything from our members. We shall discuss these situations as they arise and vote as to what we shall do about them.

"We are trying to do the best job we can. We hope to educate all groups in the Jewish community to understand properly the various problems and to co-ordinate all this with the activities of the larger general community. We are very grateful for the very fine co-operation we have received.

"The community has long needed this kind of Committee.

"If there are any reports by any member of the community we ought to know I will appreciate hearing from these individuals personally," Rabbi Goldblatt said.

The Committee has a budget of $7,200 and offices have been set up at The Temple, 10th and Delaware streets.

NAZI STORIES

We wonder whether you noticed a rather funny episode in the story of the eight Nazi spies now being sentenced for their sabotage plans. . . . They did all their shopping at Weber and Heilbronner's, thinking it was a pure Aryan firm. . . . But, as it happens, Weber and Heilbronner were among the first to join the anti-Nazi boycott in this country. . . . Two of the Bundists whom the FBI apprehended a couple of weeks ago tried to retain Louis Nizer as their attorney. . . . Nizer, who in addition to being a brilliant lawyer is one of our most active Jewish leaders, is quoted as having told them: "I'll take the case on these terms: If I win you pay me nothing—but if I lose I want $300,000, deposited in advance." . . .

YOU SHOULD KNOW

Emil Ludwig's recent remark that all Germans are Nazis and will have to be treated accordingly after the war has aroused the indignation of Paul Tillich, outstanding theologian. . . . Tillich, a Christian but a great defender of the Jews, left Germany because he couldn't stand the Nazi atmosphere. . . . He now says that Ludwig's statement smacks of anti-Semitism in reverse. . . . Jerry Finkelstein, publisher of the Civil Service Leader, has become the hope of New York's liberal educators. . . . He will, in this fall's elections, run in opposition to State Senator Frederic R. Coudert, Jr., whose Rapp-Coudert Committee has made quite a nuisance of itself with its tactics of branding liberals as Communists. . . .

MORE BOOK NEWS

You dare not miss reading Anna Seghers' novel "The Seventh Cross," which will be out shortly. . . . It is a most stirring story of life under the Gestapo in Germany. . . . And be sure to get your copy of Curt Reiss' new novel, out next week. . . . It will open your eyes about Nazi fifth column work in America's most exclusive society salons. . . . A. Kahn and M. Sayres have finished their book "Sabotage," which Harpers will publish shortly. . . . A hair-raising expose. . . . Nicky Arnstein, Fannie Brice's first husband, to whom she used to sing "My Man," is writing a book under the title: "I Never Met An Honest Man." . . .

ABOUT PEOPLE

Dinah Shore, whose voice has been heard by countless thousands over the radio, in recordings and in night clubs, now has made her debut on the concert stage. . . . It took place last month, when she sang "Summertime," from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra. . . . Dinah's discoverer, one Eddie Cantor, is, incidentally, said to be planning a visit to the Emerald Isle, to entertain the doughboys there. . . . And Sophie Tucker, last of the red-hot mammas, is reported leaving the stage for the duration, for a civilian job with the WAAC. . . .

WEEKLY GIGGLE

You're indebted to Walter Winchell for this story about the Axis chieftains who gathered in Berlin to sign one of their numerous agreements. . . . They decided this would be a fine excuse for some big publicity, so they had Gabby Goebbels make arrangements to have the proceedings broadcast and to have plenty of photographers around to take pictures of the ceremony. . . . The stage being set, Adolf, Benito and the Japanese ambassador all gathered around a huge table in Hitler's headquarters. . . . But just as Hitler was about to pick up the pen to sign the historic document, a big rat scrambled across the table and made for the piece of paper. And the Fuehrer was furious. . . . "Hey!" he yelled, "get in line!" . . . Then there's the tale which reached Leonard Lyons via the trans-Atlantic grapevine. . . . A visitor to Amsterdam, it seems, saw a train being loaded with cattle, obviously for transportation to Germany. . . . "How come?" he asked a local man. . . . "Well, you see," explained the burgher, "the other day a cow bit through a telephone cable, and was electrocuted. . . . So the Nazis said it served her right, because she was a saboteur—and now they're taking these two hundred cows to Berlin to be held as hostages, to prevent a recurrence of such sabotage." . . .

Anonymous Post Card
Probed By Post Office

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—Postal authorities here were asked this week to ascertain what persons or groups are sending anonymous mimeographed postcards quoting Mohandas K. Ghandi, India's leader, as declaring that "Palestine belongs to the Arabs in the same sense that England belongs to the English, and it is wrong and inhuman to impose Jews on the Arabs."

The postcard, carrying no return address and no signature or any other sign which might indicate the identity of its sender, has been received during the last few days by editors, organizations and leading personalities. It carries a postal stamp showing that it was mailed in New York. It asserts that the quotation is taken from the February, 1939 issue of Asia magazine. Actually it is taken out of context from an article on the Jewish question by Ghandi in the March, 1939 issue of the "Jewish Frontier."

At the office of Asia magazine, the editors, who have received many inquiries during the last few days concerning the postcards, declared that the publication had not sent out the cards nor had it authorized anybody to do so. They have requested the Post Office department to look into the matter.

Jewish Chaplains Mount to 60

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK — Sixty Jewish chaplains, more than twice the number who served in the first World War, are now on active duty with the armed forces of the United States, it was announced here this week by Dr. David de Sola Pool, chairman of the Jewish Welfare Board's Army and Navy Committee on Religious Activities. Fifty-four are in the Army, and six in the Navy, Dr. Pool said, adding that there is every likelihood of an appreciable increase in these figures in the near future.

Dr. Pool announced also that many civilian rabbis had volunteered for summer service in Army cantonments at which no regular chaplains are now stationed. Ten have already been assigned to camps in all sections of the country, and other posts will be filled as the need arises.

PENNSYLVANIA COMMUNITY TO ENROLL ALL WELFARE FUND GIVERS AS ZIONISTS

Special
COATESVILLE, Pa.—An unprecedented resolution unanimously adopted here last week at a special meeting of the Coatesville Jewish Federation provides for enrollment in the Zionist Organization of America of every contributor to the Federation. The plan will be inaugurated at the annual drive to be held in Coatesville this fall, and the enrollment is automatic for all contributors except those who specifically indicate otherwise.

The action taken by the Coatesville Federation further declared that "in every community which has a Community Chest or which has a Federation, at the time of the annual drive every contributor should be enrolled as a member of the Zionist Organization. . . . We strongly recommend that wherever feasible or practical the same plan be adopted throughout the country."

"This plan will write a new chapter in the history of the Zionist movement in America," declared Mark Sugarman, chairman of the local Federation, "and we are convinced that this method, if carried out throughout the country, should easily result in doubling or trebling the Zionist membership."

GETS ABYSSINIAN POST

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM—Nathan Marein, a Jewish lawyer from the United States, left here this week for Addis Ababa to assume the post of legal adviser to Haile Selassie, the emperor of Ethiopia. He was given an impressive farewell reception by leaders of the Abyssinian community.

Obituary

HEAR it reported that Josef Greenbaum is dead. Yet his name may not be Greenbaum. He may be Rosenbaum or Applebaum. His name doesn't matter anyway.

He lies in an anonymous grave somewhere in Poland. His grave isn't his own. He occupies it with some hundreds of others. They were all heaped together in one grave the day they were shot. They were made to dig it—a long rectangular hole—and then they were shot. They fell into the grave they were made to dig. Weeds already grow on Josef Greenbaum's grave. A long field of weeds.

All over Poland are long, long graves like Greenbaum's. They contain the 700,000 whom the Nazis have slaughtered.

True, Greenbaum may not be his name. He may be Greenberg or Greenblatt or Greenspan. But the matter of his name is of no importance; all that concerns us is that he was one of the 700,000.

I thought he should not be allowed to go without any obituary. Nowadays men die in droves, like the sheep, and are buried in heaps like the dirt when it is thrown back into their graves. There is no respect at all for the individual man, for the living he did, for his little virtues, for his small, pathetic dreams most of which never came true, for his hopes which always die so tragically.

Yes, the individual, Josef Greenbaum, must be noticed for the sake of the fact that once upon a time he lived; for the sake of our own self-respect which shudders horribly at the idea of people dying by the butcher's knife like the cattle and being disposed of like carrion.

Greenbaum shall be taken from his multiple grave and given the respect that generally used to be for man everywhere. Then there was at least a prayer for every man when he was buried; he was esteemed as somebody who had something to do with God. Even if he was a sinner he was thought not altogether alien to God.

This was Josef Greenbaum. He was the tailor or he was the cobbler who had his shop around the corner from the synagogue in the village in which he lived, or he was the small merchant. By what means he used to earn his bread is of no importance either; for at the time of his death the earning of bread was only a matter of remote memory. With many thanks to God he remembered the time when if a man worked hard all week, he could have a loaf of white bread for the Sabbath.

In the evil new time bread had become only the crust that a man might pick up if he were far enough up toward the front in the breadline. But Josef Greenbaum never was a man to push himself up in front. In the synagogue he was always in the last bench and in the breadline he let other people get ahead of him.

His wife used to say, "He's always last. He'll even be the last when the Messiah comes to call all the people."

She died some months before he was gathered up to be shot. She never had been strong and couldn't take the hunger as long as Greenbaum. He said kaddish for her with no lamentation in his heart. He said it with a fervor of joyous praise for the Most High who in good time gives peace to all pain and brings His beloved to the everlasting shelter of the grave.

He was faithful, morning and evening, in the service of the synagogue until the day it was burned down. He saw the soldiers carrying out the Scrolls of the Sacred Law and making sport of them. They let the parchment unroll to its full length and dragged it through the mud.

He thanked God then that the Torah remained in his heart and in the hearts of all good men of the village. This was only the parchment copy that was being destroyed. The Torah's righteousness and its loving kindness and its justice were everlasting, like the stars, and what hands could destroy it?

Yes, he thought, it will live when the guns have been eaten by the rust and when all this power has become only dust of bones in the wind. Men still will be carrying the Sacred Law in their hearts toward the bright, new world that must come out of all this. The Law of God will be the law of all men in the bright new world.

Thank goodness, he had a synagogue as well as the Torah in his heart. There he worshipped satisfactorily after the old one was burned down. Thank goodness, they can't take every thing away. They take away a man's living and the roof from his head but the Torah and the synagogue which are in his heart they can't take away. There was still a way of living when a man had Torah and synagogue. Yes, he thought, when he kept Torah and synagogue in his heart he still had great dignity even in his rags. Greenbaum's coat was out at the sleeves but he was grateful that it was long enough to hide the big hole in his pants.

He was deep in the prayers of the morning when they came to gather him up for the slaughter. They were in a hurry; they wanted to have the matter over with before the full light of the sun was up. Greenbaum was at the moment reciting that part which praises God for quickening the dead. They took hold of him, and still wearing his phylacteries and his talith, he was pushed into the truck. There, turning toward the East, he took up his praying again . . . "He quickeneth the dead with great mercy."

They brought him at last to the place where he and all the others who had been gathered there were to dig their immense grave. When he saw that he had been brought to his grave Greenbaum was thankful that he had his talith and phylacteries with him. He would perish in the panoply of his dignity as a man who every morning and evening, nearly in all the days of his life, spoke to God. He would not be like the cattle dying.

As he dug his grave he said the kaddish over and over: "Magnified and sanctified be His great name of Him. (He gives peace and rest after all the pain)" . . . How hard the earth was against the spade. How slowly the grave opened for him. The soldiers were saying hurry, hurry. The sun was already quite high. . . . "Let the name of the Lord be blessed from this time forth and forever. (In good time He makes an end of a man's travails and shelters him beneath His wings)."

Three long rows of men were lined up for the machine guns. One row at a time. Greenbaum was in the first row. He was among the first to fall into the grave. At last Greenbaum was among the first.

(To the memory of each of the 700,000 murdered Greenbaums, Rosenbaums and Applebaums, Greenbergs, Greenblatts and Greenspans, this obituary is inscribed—for the sake of our self-respect as human beings.)

After You,
UNCLE SAM!

Long Distance telephone lines are humming with the all-important business of War! We believe you'll agree that these urgent military and industrial calls should have the right-of-way.

Right now many telephone highways are overcrowded—some worse than others. All are feeling the pressure of war.

New construction normally would take care of the greatly increased loads. But that is no longer possible—because copper, aluminum and other materials are more urgently needed for tanks, planes and ships.

Your thoughtful use of the telephone will help us keep the voice highways clear . . . so that war calls will not be delayed.

★ Before you place ANY Long Distance call, ask yourself this question: "Is it necessary?"

And if it IS necessary, won't you please be as brief as possible?

Another way you can help is by cutting down on the number and length of local calls . . . particularly if you share a party line.

"The former inhabitants of these rooms have either died, or been deported," the Nazi gauleiter declared. He added that the 33,000 Jews who are still in Vienna have been forced to live in 7,000 rooms.

Saul Munter, in explaining why the Hillel Counselorship at Purdue University could not use the facilities at Temple Israel in Lafayette successfully, got across his point. The campus, Saul explained, was in West Lafayette, while Temple Israel was in Lafayette proper. In order to get to the Temple, the Hillelites had to walk through the main street of Lafayette. "And you know that the picture shows are on Main street," Saul declared, and then raised his hands in defeat. Everyone understood completely. Incidentally I wonder how the campaign to secure a full Foundation for Purdue is progressing.

It seems that Jack Weiss is to be the strategist of the city and county Democratic campaign this fall. The former State Senator is spending the week at Shelbyville, Mich., with a group of political leaders laying plans for the coming drive for votes and fishing on the side. At the confab are Judge Dewey Meyers, candidate for Mayor; Russel Dean, Democratic County Chairman; Ownie Bush, and several other selected party workers.

Did you know that the daughter of Murray Seasongood, Cincinnati's famous Jewish mayor, and a leader in Jewish activities in the Queen City, has been living in Indianapolis for some time. She is married to a reporter for the Indianapolis Times.

I see by the papers that Abner Schwartz, our own Abbie, has been promoted to second lieutenant in the Armored Force Division at Fort Knox. Abbie ought to fit in well as an officer, because he always had enough "brass," and should make one of the best of the "brass hats." I'm only kidding Abbie, because we're really proud of you. By the way, whatever happened to that leopard skin swimming suit?

Did you know that Will Hantman, brother of Dr. Nate Hantman the dentist, who operates the Red Cross Shoe Store in the Hume-Mansur building was in the Jewish Legion in the first World War. He served under Jabotinsky in Palestine.

Despite the fact that he was at one time head of one of Father Coughlin's units in Louisville, he is a good friend of mine. So when I was in Louisville recently and ran into him at the Louisville Times where he is a reporter, I asked him frankly what he thought about Father Coughlin.

"Father Coughlin is the most maligned man in the United States today," he said.

A drug store in a thickly-populated Jewish neighborhood here will soon be for sale, when the owner goes into the army. Anybody interested in buying this really thriving business can get more information by calling or writing me.

BROADMOOR BREVITIES

By ADELE GOLDSTEIN

Shooting some very nice golf this season is Leonard Solomon, who often hits the low seventies. Among the ladies we notice Mrs. Ralph Cole, who recently had the nice score of an 84.

We wish we could all play like our amiable pro, George Soutar. George has been at Broadmoor for so long it would never be the same without him. He has taught and turned out many golf champions at Broadmoor, and is well liked by all the "lads and lassies."

Major Sam manzel was honored by a dinner attended by 110 people at Broadmoor before he left for Denver. Sam Manzel, Jr., also left for Naval training school in Boston.

Joe Rothbard received his appointment as ensign, and goes to Harvard in the fall for training.

Alvin Cohen, who is here on a brief leave will go on Atlantic duty soon.

Diane Cohen, after taking an extended trip through the west and visiting her brother and sister-in-law at Camp San Luis Obispo is now home.

Joe Gelman, leaving for the Navy, is to be stationed at Peru, Ind.

Mrs. Art Rose and son, Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dayan, and Miss Henrietta Rothbard, are going to Lake Wawasee for a few days.

Mrs. Hermann Strachun and her niece, Gretchen Edwards, have gone to New York for a brief stay.

Mrs. Harry Farber is spending a few days at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago.

Also going to Chicago for the week-end are Mrs. Victor Goldberg and family.

Abner Schwartz, here on a visit, received his commission as Lieutenant in the U. S. Army.

The editor's chair

Attending the mass meeting in New York Tuesday a week ago was Dan Frisch, who was seated on the speakers' platform at the gigantic session sponsored by the American Jewish Congress, the B'nai B'rith and the Jewish Labor Committee. When Gov. Lehman made his remark about opposing a Jewish army, Mr. Frisch called out, "shame, shame," and in no undertones either.

Many parents throughout Indiana, especially outside of Indianapolis have been sending in money to pay for subscriptions for their sons in the service. We are not philanthropists here, but sending The Post free to any Jewish boy in the Army or Navy is little enough for us to do. Last Friday I almost had to fight Shulamith Raab, looking as pert and chic as usual, to stop her from leaving $2.00 for a subscription for brother Harry, who gets his mail through the New York Postmaster, which means he's somewhere overseas.

The response on the second printing of the Service Record in last week's issue was overwhelming. From Evansville alone almost thirty names were mailed in. The plan of reprinting the list from month to month with additions has worked out better than expected.

Max de Jong of Evansville, G. Irving Latz of Fort Wayne (now in the Army) and Charles S. Rauh of Indianapolis are the Indiana men who are members of the national Board of State Directors of the National Farm School, Jewish-supported farm school at Doylestown, Pa. Boasting 1,200 acres of excellent farm land and a large campus, the school ranks with the agricultural schools of the finest State Universities. I spent a day at the school some few years ago, and was really impressed. The school for the most part takes Jewish boys from the crowded city streets and makes bona fide scientific farmers out of them. Usually all the graduates are asked for by large farm owners months before graduation. With the above-named Indiana men working for the institution, no Indiana applicant should have any difficulty in entering the 40-year-old school.

The Public Relations Committee

THE newly-organized Public Relations Committee deserves commendation. Without fanfare and with the maximum of effectiveness, the new group has made itself felt as one of the leading Jewish organizations of the city in the past few months.

The organization is scarcely known to most of the Indianapolis Jewish community. Yet it is doing a most important piece of work. At present its program as reported in a news story in this issue, calls for the investigation of a private club, the ironing out of a serious situation in regards to the Negro community, and several other incidents.

Although most Jewish organizations are so set up that they are managed almost exclusively by a few, the Public Relations Committee is the one most democratic body in the community.

Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt is secretary of the organization. Not only is its program concerned with fighting untoward incidents, but at the same time much of its agenda is concerned with positive acts, the building of good will, the fostering of inter-community relationship, and the spreading of the story of the Jew sans propaganda.

The community too has a responsibility in connection with the successful operation of the Committee. Any reports of anti-Semitism should be referred immediately to the Committee. In some cases, innocent concerns are made to suffer by the thoughtless repeating of rumors, while in others, firms who discriminate against minority groups should be apprized immediately that their tactics are known and will be fought.

A Guiding Hand—Is It the J.W.B.

APERUSAL of the news of Jewish soldiers in Anglo-Jewish publications throughout the country, reveals one outstanding and remarkably similar factor, which thus far seems to have escaped the notice of the Jewish public.

In almost every case, the Jewish soldier writing to his home town paper comments on the hospitality of the Jews in towns near his camp. This unanimity is all the more remarkable when it is taken into consideration that the men being dealt with are drawn from all walks of life, are seriously lonesome and are total strangers to the Jewish families into whose midsts they have been thrust.

Underneath it all then, there is indication of a guiding hand.

The Post suspicions that this hand is the hand of the Jewish Welfare Board. In fact, the job accomplished by the J.W.B. is almost inconceivable. In every community in the nation even the small ones, an army and navy committee, set up by the J.W.B., functions at the slightest notice of a soldier.

Only when the full story of the civilian morale effort in this war is written, will the various ramifications of the J.W.B. provision for the welfare of the Jewish soldier become known.

Current Comment

Churchill's Views on Palestine as Stated in a Speech in the British House of Commons in 1939—As one intimately and responsibly concerned in the earlier stages of our Palestine policy, I could not stand by and see solemn engagements into which Britain has entered before the world set aside for reasons of administrative convenience or—and it will be a vain hope—for the sake of a quiet life. I should feel personally embarrassed in the most acute manner if I lent myself, by silence or inaction, to what I must regard as an act of repudiation. I can understand that others take a different view. There are many views which may be taken. Some may consider themselves less involved in the declarations of former Governments. Some may feel that the burden of keeping faith weighs upon them rather oppressively. Some may be pro-Arab and some may be anti-Semite. None of these motives offers me any means of escape because I was from the beginning a sincere advocate of the Balfour Declaration, and I have made repeated public statements to that effect.

Not only did the War Cabinet of those days take the decision, but all Cabinets of every party after the War, after examining it in the varying circumstances which have arisen, have endorsed the decision and taken the fullest responsibility for it.

To whom was the pledge of the Balfour Declaration made? It was not made to the Jews of Palestine, it was not made to those who were actually living in Palestine. It was made to world Jewry and in particular to the Zionist associations. It was in consequence of and on the basis of this pledge that we received important help in the War, and that after the War we received from the Allied and Associated Powers the Mandate for Palestine. This pledge of a home of refuge, of an asylum, was not made to the Jews in Palestine but to the Jews outside Palestine, to that vast, unhappy mass of scattered, persecuted, wandering Jews whose intense, unchanging, unconquerable desire has been for a National Home.

I cannot feel that we have accorded to the Arab race unfair treatment after the support which they gave us in the late War. The Palestinian Arabs, of course, were for the most part fighting against us, but elsewhere over vast regions inhabited by the Arabs independent Arab kingdoms and principalities have come into being such as had never been known in Arab history. Some have been established by Great Britain and others by France. Colonel Lawrence, the truest champion of Arab rights whom modern times have known, has recorded his opinion that the settlement was fair and just—his definite, settled opinion. Together we placed the Emir Abdulla in Transjordan, where he remains faithful and prosperous to this day. Together, under the responsibility of the Prime Minister of those days, King Feisal was placed upon the throne of Iraq, where his descendants now rule. But we also showed ourselves continually resolved to close no door upon the the ultimate development of a Jewish National Home, fed by continual Jewish immigration into Palestine. Colonel Lawrence thought this was fair then. Why should it be pretended that it is unfair now?

Freedom of the Press

SAYS POST OWES RABBI KATZ PUBLIC APOLOGY

To the editor,

Of all of the astonishing and biased pieces of reporting that article of yours concerning the public meeting at the Knesset Israel Schule is one of the most exasperating...

Either you are playing politics or your bread is buttered on a certain side, for you certainly are not expressing the views of the community as a whole nor are you doing a sincere piece of writing by distorting the facts as you have reported them...

Supposing Rabbi Katz did speak longer than allowed, is it such a sin to spend a few extra minutes in a Schule at a time like this listening to a learned man expound the virtues of God. Also, do you realize that part of his speech was taken up with the singing of the El Rachemin. Also, do you know that Jews of my kind, and there are still plenty of them left, go to Schule to cry as well as pray. We want to cry our hearts out to God once in a while. That's why we have men like Rabbi Katz...

Rabbi Shapiro has also expressed his sorrow at what happened and he did not take exception to the time that Rabbi Katz used and from your writing you would think that Rabbi Shapiro did not like it either. Before making statements like this you should get a man's self-expression of opinion and not make one up of your own.

You most certainly owe Rabbi Katz a public apology for the insulting article you have written.

Sincerely,

SHOOLEM ETTINGER

Indianapolis, Ind.

Editor's Note: There is a story in the Talmud about a man who had two wives, one young and one old. The young one picked his gray hair because she wanted him to look her age. The old one picked his dark hair because she wanted him to look her age. The net result was that he remained as the Talmud puts it, "bald as over."

B'nai B'rith Straddles Jewish Army Question

WASHINGTON, D. C.—While taking no position on the "Jewish army" question, B'nai B'rith Central Administrative Board this week unanimously went on record as urging that "immediate steps be taken by the proper authorities to enable the Jewish population resident in Palestine to defend themselves against Arab aggression and to afford them the opportunity to make a maximum contribution to the United Nations in the achievement of an early victory."
